WHAT IS A RESUME?

A resume is a one or two page summary of your skills, accomplishments, experiences, and education designed to capture a prospective employer's interest. The purpose of a resume is to secure an interview. It is the primary tool of your job search and may take several drafts to prepare effectively. This booklet is designed to assist you by offering suggestions and guidelines for you to use as you construct, write and print your resume.

BUILDING AN EFFECTIVE RESUME

I. Self-Assessment

Before you can write an effective resume, you must first be able to identify your skills and abilities as well as your special needs relating to the work environment, salary, geographic location, and people environment. This step will help you to develop a career objective. The following exercises will help you identify some things about yourself, which you may want to express in your resume.

Self-Assessment Exercise

- A. Circle at least 10 skills listed on pages 13-16 which you have developed in each of the following areas: Education/Work/Internships or Volunteer/Extracurricular. Use action words to develop one-liner summaries.
- B. Circle each of the skills noted that you would like to use in your employment. Are there other talents you possess that you would like to use on the job? If so, add them to the list of circled skills. Now rank these skills in order of those you most want to use.
- C. Make a list of what you consider to be great accomplishments in your life (refer to pages 17-23). What personal qualities helped you reach each goal?

II. Career Exploration

Collecting information regarding the required skills and qualifications of occupations, which interest you, is an extremely important step. This information will help you decide if and how these requirements relate to your own skills and needs. Using the books available at Columbia Basin College Career Center or making an appointment with a counselor can be helpful in identifying and exploring careers and can also help you in developing a career objective.

III. Writing The Resume

As you organize your resume, keep in mind the needs of the employer who will be reading it. Consider what he/she is looking for in a candidate and make it easy for the reader to pick out those skills by selecting appropriate categories, using underlining, boldfacing or capitalizing and presenting relevant experience and skill areas higher on the page.

Keep in mind the following suggestions as you begin developing your resume:

1. Sell yourself. Create a good first impression by highlighting skills and abilities appropriate to the position.
2. Use active language. Refer to our list of action words on pages 13-16 to spice up your resume. Articulate marketable skills acquired through your positions. Example: Salesperson, Smith Shoe Store, Portland, Maine. Assisted clients with selection of shoes, developed and promoted special marketing events, trained new employees, monitored cash, store increased in sales by 7 percent in six-month period.
3. Be consistent. Choose a pattern of spacing, an order of information presentation or a format of highlighting and be consistent throughout.
4. Use simple, clear language. Avoid long paragraphs, consider bullet statements. Omit all pronouns and unnecessary articles such as “a”, “an”, and “the”.
5. Make your resume graphically presentable. Headings, spacing, underlining, and bold type all add emphasis.
6. Present information in reverse chronological order within categories. List education and work experiences starting with the most recent first.
7. Check for grammar. Misspellings and poorly constructed sentences communicate negative impressions about a candidate. Be certain you have used consistent verb tense throughout the resume.
8. Ensure that your resume is neat and visually appealing. Choose high quality paper in off-white or other conservative colors. Have the final version professionally reproduced.

Employers only scan a resume, so organize your information effectively.

Impressions are made in the first five seconds.

MAKE YOUR RESUME UNIQUE

Feel free to develop your own categories to highlight your special relevant experiences and skills. It is frequently useful to separate your related or professional experiences from your other work experience by creating separate categories for these content areas. In this way, you can call more attention to your relevant skills by putting them in categories closer to the top of the resume so they are read first.

Here Are Some Examples:

- Related Experience
- Student Teaching Experience
- Experience With Children
- Related Courses (school or college)
- Community Volunteer Work
- Workshops & Conferences Attended
- Technical Skills
- Special Skills
- Computer Skills
- Certificates
- Travel
- Leadership
- Accomplishments
- Professional Memberships
- Military Experience
- Language Proficiencies
- Additional Information
- Summary of Skills

In place of related experience you might wish to indicate your field of experience in the category heading.

Examples: Business Experience, Engineering Experience, Human Services Experience, Sales Experience, etc.

RESUME CONTENT AREA

The following categories can be used as guidelines to assist you in organizing a resume. In constructing a rough draft, do not be concerned with length. Remember, categories may be omitted or added in later revisions. There is no absolute correct way to organize your resume. Creativity is encouraged. The following are descriptions of the basic categories of the standard resume:

Name, Address and Telephone:

Present yourself with the name you use in your personal and business life (nicknames should be avoided). If you have a campus address that does not apply during vacations or after graduation, you should present both a college and permanent address. Use your parents' home address, a post office box, or someone who will know where to contact you at all times. Also, always include phone numbers with area codes. If you do not have an answering machine, leave a message number where you can be reached. If you have an email address, you might want to include that as well.

Objective or Profile:

The objective is one of the most important parts of a resume and should not be overlooked. It informs potential employers that you are moving in a certain direction, relates your work preference(s), and serves as a focal point from which to review and analyze your resume. It should be brief, clearly stated, and consistent with the accomplishments and demonstrated skills as documented on your resume. If you are considering more than one professional goal, you should consider developing more than one resume, each presenting a different objective.

Example:

- Position utilizing my education and skills in computer science.
- Position within a financial institution requiring strong analytical and organizational skills.

The profile is an alternative to an objective statement. It gives you the opportunity to present your strengths at the very beginning of the resume.

Example:

Profile Marketing...Finance...Management

- Eager to contribute to the growth of a progressive company with quality products or services.
- Qualified by business education, customer service and administrative experience.
- Professional appearance and advanced interpersonal communication.
- Highly motivated, strong work ethic; available as needed for training, travel, overtime, etc.
- Financed 80% of college tuition and expenses; additional 20% through scholarships.

In writing the major areas of your resume, it is important to emphasize your abilities and accomplishments more than past duties. You may also want to indicate how well you performed. This will help infuse personal qualities such as character and personality into your resume.

Education:

This category is particularly important if you have not had a great deal of work experience. Remember, your most recent educational experience should be listed first.

Include your degree (A.A.S, A.S., A.A., B.S., B.A., etc.), major, institution(s) attended, date of graduation, minors or concentrations, and any special workshops, seminars, related coursework or projects. A G.P.A. of higher than a 3.0 (either overall G.P.A. or G.P.A. in major) should also be noted here.

Work Experience:

Many students have limited paid work experience, but have been involved in volunteer, internship, practicum or student teaching work experiences. The important point to the employer is what your skills are and what you can do on the job. Be sure to include all significant work experience in reverse chronological order.

- You should include: (1) the title of your position, (2) name of organization, (3) location of work (town, state), and (4) dates (ex. Summer 1994; 1994-95 academic year).
- You should describe your work responsibilities with an emphasis on achievements using action words to communicate your skills. List the most important and related responsibilities first.
- Identify the most relevant work experiences and describe them fully. Be brief with the irrelevant experiences or omit them. It is sometimes useful to divide your work experience into two categories: Relevant Experience and Other Experience.
- You may want to add that work was performed to earn a certain percent of college expenses. Example: Earned 75% of college expenses through the following part-time jobs.

Additional Information:

This category is useful for displaying information that doesn't fit in any other category. Although Interests, Computer Knowledge, Activities, Qualifications, Skills and Abilities can be separate categories, especially if they are very strong, they can be listed here as well. Languages spoken, or any extra, relevant bit of information can be placed here as well.

- Interests: This is sometimes used to evaluate your suitability to a geographic area or to understand your "personality type". Include this section if you have available space. Include social or civic activities, health and fitness or sports activities, or hobbies which indicate how you spend your leisure time. Activities related to your employment goals are worth noting.

- Computer Knowledge: If using computers is a necessary skill for the job you are seeking, be sure to highlight your knowledge in this section. Example:
 - Software: Lotus, dBase III, WordPerfect 5.1, Microsoft Word, Excel, SAS, Real World Accounting
 - Hardware: IBM 3090 Mainframe, AT&T 386, IBM PC, Macintosh
- Activities, Qualifications, Skills & Abilities: These are also important categories to include. If the activities involved work responsibility, note it in some detail. The employer is interested in the skills you have developed whether through volunteer or paid experiences. If you were elected to offices or committees, mention it.

References:

Be sure to ask individuals if they would be willing to be a reference for you prior to mentioning their names to prospective employers. Names of individuals are not usually listed on the resume (unless there is space available at the end), but you should prepare a typed list of three references to provide at the interview. This list should include name, title, employer, address, business and home telephone number. You may also state at the bottom of your resume "References furnished upon request." Be sure to include your name at the top of the page in case it becomes separated from your resume.

RESUME WORKSHEET

Complete each section, as you want this information to appear on your resume. Be complete but brief. Do not use abbreviations unless necessary. Emphasize your accomplishments and skills that are directly related to the job you want. Use a pencil to allow for changes later. Use additional paper as needed.

RESUME TUTORIAL

- In today's competitive job market, companies are flooded with resumes and cover letters for a finite number of openings.
- Typically, employers will spend only 5 to 20 seconds on each resume.
- The resume is the employer's tool for eliminating candidates rather than the candidate's tool for gaining access to the company.

MARKETING YOUR SKILLS

- Think of your resume as a sales tool.
 - Your resume should not summarize your job responsibilities
 - Focus on your accomplishments and contributions
- Recognize your competition may have a similar work history or education
- Emphasize your successes and unique strengths

WHAT EMPLOYERS LOOK FOR IN A RESUME

- Employers prefer one-page resumes.
- Your resume should appear neat, organized, and error-free.
- Use a style that quickly conveys your past performance and future capabilities related to the job.

CHOOSING A FORMAT

- Carefully select your resume format.
- The wrong format can greatly diminish your chances of landing an interview.
- There are three accepted resume formats:
 - Chronological
 - Functional
 - Chrono-functional

RESUME FORMATS

- Chronological
 - Focuses on employment history and education.
 - Work experience and education are listed in reverse chronological order.
- Functional
 - Emphasizes skills and qualifications
 - Employment experience and education are downplayed, if not omitted.
- Chrono-functional
 - Emphasizes both skills and employment experience equally.

GENERAL GUIDELINES FOR RESUME STYLE

	Chronological	Functional	Chronofunctional
Strong employment history	*
Strong educational history	*
Changing Industries		*
Frequent job changes		*
Strong skills & work history			*
Strong education & some work history	*
Returning to the workforce (at-home parents)		*
Moving up the career ladder	*

Chronological

see chart

- Most common resume format.
- Best for individuals with a solid work history.
- Effective for people staying within the same field.
- Appropriate for recent college graduates.
- Most preferred by employers.

Chronological: Recent College Graduates

see chart

- Recent college graduates.
 - list education first.
 - follow education with relevant work experience.
 - include part-time and summer positions, volunteer work, and internships.

Functional

- Least common resume format.
- Best for individuals with a weak employment history.
 - frequent job changes.
 - at-home parents returning to the work place.
- If included, employment and education are listed briefly.
- A good choice for career changers.
- Least preferred by employers.

Chrono-functional

- An increasingly popular choice.
- Highlights marketable skills and abilities at the top of the resume.
- Allows for detailed descriptions of employment and educational background.
- Preferred by employers over the functional resume.

RESUME FORMATTING

- Body text should be in standard font. (Example: Times New Roman 12 point).
- Use italics only to highlight a particular aspect of an accomplishment (i.e. sales, costs, etc). Headers should use a Sans Serif font (Example: Helvetica 12 point).
- Use bold or underline to emphasize a header; do not use them together on one word. Example: (Objective)

PAPER AND ENVELOPES

- Standard office paper is acceptable for most positions. (Example: 20-pound bond).
- Color and texture should match.
- Color should be conservative such as off-white or other conservative colors.
- Never staple or fold your resume.
- Check out your local office supply store for paper, envelopes, and folders.

PRINTERS

- Laser printers can provide high quality resumes.
- Inkjet is an inexpensive solution which provides near laser quality.
- Dot matrix is dated and does not provide adequate quality for a resume.

EDITING TIPS

- When printing copies, check print quality for bleed, jagged or crooked edges and overall readability.
- After running a spell checker, visually edit the resume.
- Give it to three friends or family members to review and edit.
- If possible, have a hiring manager who works in your field of interest review the resume for content and structure.

SUMMARY

- The resume is your sales tool.
- Stress your accomplishments.
- Proof! Proof! Proof!

EMPLOYMENT LETTERS

During a job search you will need to use employment letters. Listed below are the main types of letters and their purpose.

Cover Letter

Always accompanies your resume. It is sent to prospective employers as a letter of application or a letter of inquiry.

- A) Letter of Application – used when you are applying for a specifically advertised employment position which is currently available.
- B) Letter of Inquiry – used when you are inquiring whether or not an employer has a job opening which would utilize your skills.

Follow-up/Thank you Letter

Should be sent as a follow-up to thank the person(s) who interviewed you. This letter is used to include any additional, relevant information forgotten in the interview. This is a good business courtesy practice and helps the interviewer(s) remember you for that particular position.

Acceptance Letter

Should be sent when you are offered a position and you accept it. This lets the employer know when you can begin working and that you are looking forward to joining the company.

Declining/Rejection Letter

This is written when you are offered a position and you do not want to accept it. You thank the employer for the offer. You do not need to go into detail as to why you are declining the position.

THE COVER LETTER

An important tool in your job search is the cover letter that accompanies your resume. A cover letter is a way of introducing yourself and your resume in order to get an interview. This may be the first contact you have with the potential employer, so the selling of YOU begins in this letter. The purpose of a cover letter is to establish a personal introduction to the person who can make the hiring decision, conveying your ability to be of value to his/her organization in specific areas.

This requires you to:

- 1) Obtain the name and title of the individual in charge of the department or function in which you want to work. You can usually accomplish this by simply calling the company and asking for such information (along with the correct spelling). Express that you have some information to send and you want to make sure it gets in the right hands.
- 2) Know something about the organization. You may need to do some research. The internet is a great place to find information on companies.

The emphasis of your cover letter should be centered on how your skills can be value to the potential employer NOT on what you are asking from them.

In closing your cover letter, be sure to ask for an interview. This will make it easier and natural to follow-up with a telephone call.

WRITING THE COVER LETTER

Creating a positive impression takes care and research. Here are some guidelines for writing your cover letter.

- 1) The first 20 words are important and should focus the reader's attention.
- 2) Use simple language grammar and spelling, and correct business format. Avoid over-used phrases. Be correct and natural.
- 3) Keep it short. Your resume is the primary introduction tool.
- 4) Describe yourself in terms of the contributions you can make to the employer, not what you can get. Give it a personal touch by pointing out some aspect of your background or resume relates to the organization concerns, or include some comments that show you are knowledgeable about the organization and its product or service.
- 5) Do NOT reproduce cover letters. A complete original should be sent to each individual.

ADDITIONAL GUIDELINES FOR THE COVER LETTER

First Paragraph

In your initial paragraph, state the reason for the letter, name the specific position or type of work for which you are applying, and indicate from which resource (placement center, news, media, friend, employment service) you learned of the opening.

Second Paragraph

Indicate why you are interested in the position, the company, its products or services – above all, what you can do for the employer. If you are a recent graduate, explain how your academic background makes you a qualified candidate for the position. If you have some practical work experience, point out your specific achievements or unique qualifications. Try not to repeat the same information the reader will find in the resume.

Third Paragraph

In the closing paragraph, indicate your desire for a personal interview and your flexibility as to the time and place. Repeat your phone number in the letter and offer any assistance to help in a speedy response. Make sure to include a short concise statement expressing your appreciation for the consideration of your job inquiry.
