CEO, Foundation

Fundraising

- Golf Tournament September 16th – Grossed about 27K and will net about 17K which will go toward Athletics
- Received $50,000 in new donations. $30,000 was unrestricted
- Notified that a new Community Foundation will donate $50,000 for the Planetarium project. A press conference is scheduled for next week.

Other

- Held a free Wills & Estate Planning Seminar last week which was well attended
 1. Provides a community service
 2. Brings new individuals to campus
 3. Enhances our donor list
- Next week holding first retirement seminar and demand is high
- Started our 3rd annual financial forum last week. Planned 8 sessions and held room 110, B Building from 11:30-12:30.
- Scholarship Reception, October 21st, Pasco Red Lion, 11:00AM-12:00PM – 417K in scholarships being awarded to over 300 students
- CBC is now host to the Aerospace Joint Apprenticeship Committee (AJAC) providing up to 12 apprentices in the community in aircraft related machining. This addition to the campus and community will help meet the growing needs of the aerospace and manufacturing industries. The Manufacturing Technology program has also secured some funding from SBCTC to help fund this local apprenticeship option.

ASCBC President

Yesenia Lázaro

- Introduced herself as this year's ASCBC President, and is looking forward to updating Board on school projects/events. Recent activity:
 - 2011-12 Service & Activities Board (SAB)
 - John Myers, Ruben Garcia, Kailee Dunn
 - Leadership Council is made for registered CBC students who would like to enhance their leadership skills. Students must register for this class like any other regular class, and it is free. This fall quarter the LC will be watching the short film series Trombone Player Wanted by Marcus Buckingham.
 - White Paper – As ASCBC President, Yesenia has spent time reviewing the 2012 Legislative White Paper. This white paper was developed at the 2011 Student Voice Academy, which is a meeting of student representatives from Washington Community and Technical Colleges.

Planetarium

Energy (2013).

- The introduction of these three new degrees is an aggressive attempt to turn around poor regional performance by students in STEM area subjects.
- What's needed to perform well?
 - To best support any new degree program, you need: (1) good teaching materials and instructors (2) good students, and (3) good facilities
 - Three facilities are needed for optimum success: (1) the existing Moore Observatory (2) the renovated and re-installed Rattlesnake Mtn. Observatory (RMO), having the largest telescope in the state, and (3) a planetarium/multi-media center
 - We have the teachers, materials
 - We need now some good students, and
 - We need all three facilities operational
- Why Three?
 - We will use the Moore Observatory for the first two years of Astronomy education and public outreach
 - We will use the RMO for junior/senior year research projects/programs
 - We will use the Planetarium for public outreach, teaching, and as a revenue source to fund operational costs for both the RMO and planetarium
- Status of Facilities...
 - We have the Moore Observatory and it is functioning well.
 - We will soon have operational the former RMO (now called the Pacific Northwest Regional Observatory) by the end of this year for student research
 - We need to construct the Planetarium
- The Planetarium will
 - Be a Community resource and source of revenue for loan debt reduction, O&M funds, and scholarships
 - It will have IMAX-like screen projection quality
 - Virtually every degree program on campus may use this facility as a special auditorium or theatre
 - As a multi-media facility in the Mid-Columbia, it will be unparalleled.
 - With the RMO and Moore Observatories, CBC will have access to the best astronomy and physics tools in the state
- Funding Status...
 - We need $1.2M total to make this facility a reality
 - We've identified from available funds/loans $850k of this total.
 - We're chasing the balance via the Foundation from private donors.
