The value is in action, not the possession of data.</li> <li>• Sharpen the institutional governance process. Build a more agile curriculum change process that can take advantage of big data conclusions.</li> <li>• Adopt a “digital first” strategy to establish the flexibility to change curriculum and pedagogy fast.</li> <li>• Embrace the big data movement. Embrace it to stay ahead of ensuing government regulations, to be flexible and to retain freedom.</li> </ul>
Reports Academic End State Monitoring Report	Curt Freed The performance of CBC on the Academic End State was evaluated by measuring outcomes on the five goals and their associated indicators. The main findings include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Goal A: Students Demonstrate Progress. Fall-to-fall retention rates have reached the highest levels in 10 years and Hispanic retention rates have also risen. Student success rates on a sample of English courses were high, but success rates for math courses were generally low. Because of enrollment management decisions that influence the performance on the Student Achievement Initiative (SAI), points for this indicator were moderate.</li> <li>• Goal B: Effective Learning. Student ratings of achieving the Student Learning Outcomes (SLO), achieving educational and personal outcomes, and quality of CBC education were high.</li> <li>• Goal C: Effective Teaching. Student perceptions of classroom engagement and interactions with faculty were very positive. CBC had moderate performance in terms of percentage of courses taught by full-time, compared to part-time, faculty.</li> <li>• Goal D: Quality Educational Programs. The transfer rate for CBC students was moderate; performance at CWU following transfer was good. The favorite transfer baccalaureate was WSU Tri-Cities, followed by two online programs--the University of Phoenix and Western Governors University.</li> <li>• Goal E: Quality Support Programs. Students had generally positive perceptions of student support services and various aspects of the supportive learning environment at CBC. Over ¾ of student survey respondents felt they had been placed appropriately into math and English courses by the COMPASS placement test.</li> </ul>

Fiscal Indicators Report Olympia Update	After placing the indicator results into a Nichols’ table, CBC achieved 83 Performance Points, for an overall “B” level of performance. Poor math attainment by our students, coupled with a correlated depressed transfer rate, which is then rolled up with enrollment realities that affect our SAI performance, pull us down from the “A” level performance to which we aspire and which most other indicators attain. Curt thanked Joe Montgomery, Amanda Wysocki and Ty Jones for their work on report. Bill Saraceno <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• College is in great financial shape. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ Transfer and Workforce up</li> </ul> </li> </ul> President Cummins <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Governor Gregoire is leaving office Wednesday</li> <li>• Released her 2013-15 Biennial operating budget proposal <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ No cuts are made to higher education</li> <li>○ To balance the shortfalls in the general fund as well as those created by the McCleary lawsuit, the Governor reduces funding to other state agencies and proposes multiple changes to taxes.</li> <li>○ Increased taxes are proposed for: Soda, Candy and Gum; Fuel (excise tax).</li> </ul> </li> <li>• Overall, the Governor’s request for the SBCTC increases FY 2014 and FY 2015 by 5.9% and 6.9% (respectively) over FY 2013 appropriated levels. The annual funding level for FY 2014 is $612.5 million, while FY 2015 is $624.6 million.</li> <li>• Will see what new Governor Inslee’s budget will be as he takes office.</li> </ul>
